Health Snippet - EXERCISE

The chief, if not the only reason why many become invalids is that the blood does not circulate freely, and the changes in the vital fluid, which are necessary to life and health, do not take place. More people die for want of exercise than through over-fatigue; many more rust out than wear out. When the weather will permit, all who can possibly do so ought to walk in the open air every day, summer, winter or rainy. But the clothing should be suitable for the exercise, and the feet should be well protected. A walk, would be more beneficial to the health than all the medicine the doctors may prescribe. Those who can walk, walking is preferable to riding. - Counsels on Health, pg. 552.

Power Walking: speed of 3.5 to 5.5 mph (30m 5 times a week)

Need to warm-up and cool down and stretch before & after.

Pump your arms backwards and forwards as you walk.

Don't lean forward, it may give you low back pain.

Can we trust Bible Prophecy

We have also a more sure word of prophecy; whereunto ye do well that ye take heed, as unto a light that shineth in a dark place, until the day dawn, and the day star arise in your hearts: Knowing this first, that no prophecy of the scripture is of any private interpretation. For the prophecy came not in old time by the will of man: but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost. – 2 Peter 1:19-21

– Daniel 7:23

And I stood upon the sand of the sea, and saw a beast rise up out of the sea, having seven heads and ten horns, and upon his horns ten crowns, and upon his heads the name of blasphemy. – Revelation 13:1

Land Beast - USA

And I beheld another beast: 1. coming up out of the earth; and 2. he had two horns like a lamb, and 3. he spake as a dragon. – Revelation 13:11

The Bible Interprets itself

Kingdom = Nation

For the kingdom is the LORD'S: and he is the governor among the nations. – Psalms 22:28

2nd Beast of Revelation 13:11-17

Revelation 13:11 prophesies the rising of a great beast:

- In prophecy, a beast represents a great nation.
- This nation comes out of the earth, or wilderness area.
- This nation starts out young, like a baby lamb.
- This nation is lamb-like, with Christian characteristics.
- This nation has horns with no crowns—it has no kings.
- This nation achieves superpower status near the end of time (closing history of this earth).
- This nation influences the world's economy.
- This nation finally speaks like a dragon.
- This nation finally enforces the mark (Sunday Worship) of the first beast in Revelation 13:2.

The Rise of Protestantism - USA

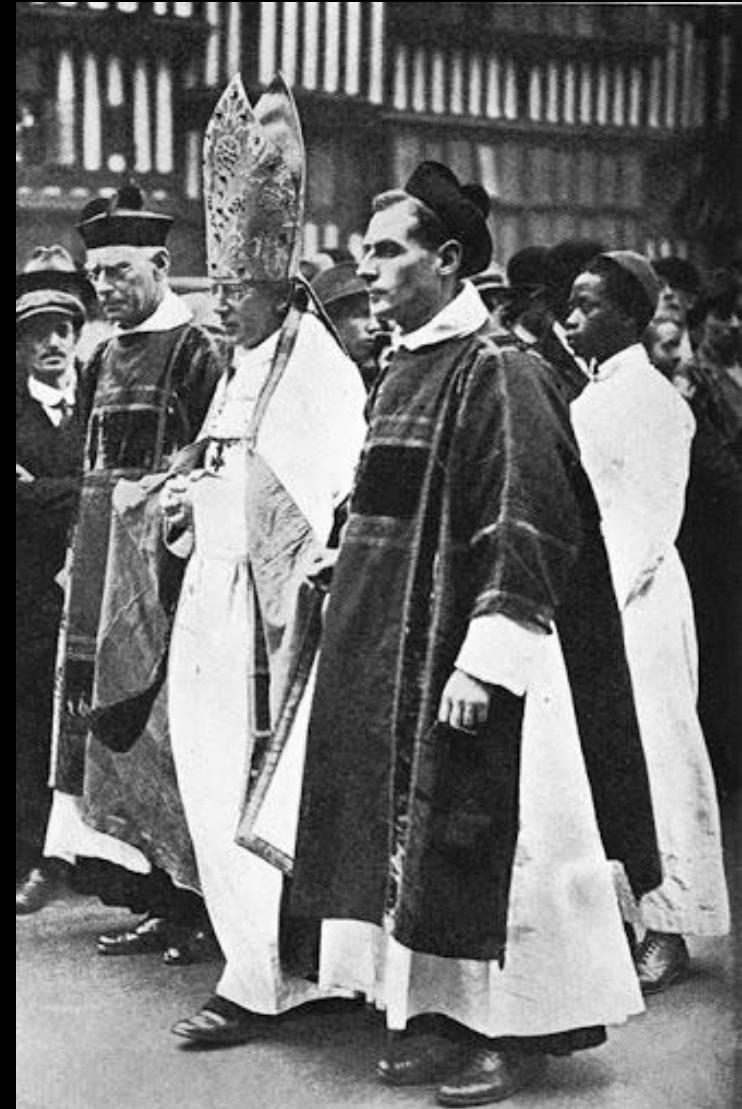

Many of the British North American colonies that eventually formed the United States of America were settled in the seventeenth century by men and women, who, in the face of European persecution, refused to compromise passionately held religious convictions and fled Europe. The New England colonies, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Maryland were conceived and established "as plantations of religion." The great majority left Europe to worship God in the way they believed to be correct. They enthusiastically supported the efforts of their leaders to create "a city on a hill" or a "holy experiment," whose success would prove that God's plan for his churches could be successfully realized in the American wilderness. Even colonies like Virginia, which were planned as commercial ventures, were led by entrepreneurs who considered themselves "militant Protestants" and who worked diligently to promote the prosperity of the church. - <https://www.loc.gov/exhibits/religion/rel01.html>

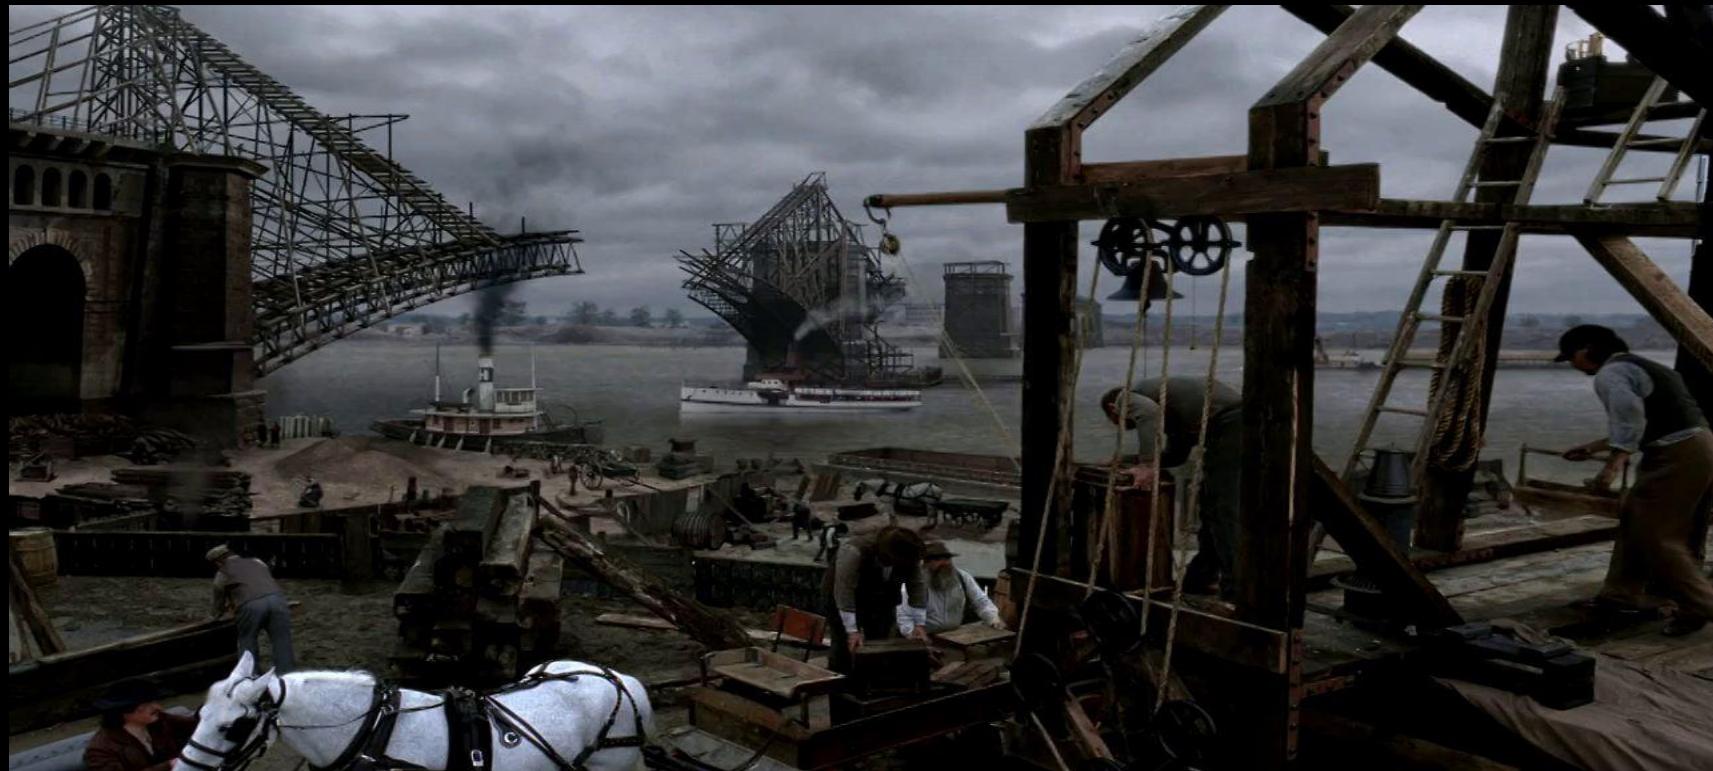

The Rise of Catholicism in USA

The Catholic Church grew through immigration, especially from Europe (Germany and Ireland at first, and in 1890-1914 from Italy, Poland and Eastern Europe.) In the nineteenth century the Church set up an elaborate infrastructure, based on diocese run by bishops appointed by the pope. Each diocese set up a network of parishes, schools, colleges, hospitals, orphanages and other charitable institutions. Many priests arrived from France and Ireland, but by 1900 Catholic seminaries were producing a sufficient supply of priests. Many young women became nuns, typically working as teachers and nurses. - https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/History_of_the_Catholic_Church_in_the_United_States

The American & French Revolutions

When American colonists won independence from Great Britain in the Revolutionary War, the French, who participated in the war themselves, were both close allies and key participants. While the French Revolution was a complex conflict with numerous triggers and causes, the American Revolution set the stage for an effective uprising that the French had observed first-hand. - https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/American_Revolution

The Revolution and

The Right supported the King and Tradition

Left & Right: Origin – French Revolution

So, how did these two terms find their place in people's vocabulary? These terms originally referred to the physical seating arrangements of the politicians of the French Assembly during the French Revolution. During the drafting of the French Constitution, those who were pro-monarchy and wanted more authority for the King seated themselves on the right of the presiding officer and the anti-royalists seated themselves on the left.

The Left & The Right - Origin

We want Liberty and Equality, we want Democracy, we want Liberalism.

We want Order, Tradition, Hierarchy, and Authority,
We want Monarchy, we want Conservatism.

If a left wing democratic government acts as an authoritative tyrant that behaviour is right-wing, if the monarch acts like a liberal monarch, as we can say Napoleon or the Enlightened Monarchs did, then that behaviour can be labelled left-wing despite the right-wing authoritarian aspects.

When Jesus therefore perceived that they would come and take him by force, to make him a king, he departed again into a mountain himself alone. – John 6:15

Church & State - Past

As the first Roman emperor to claim conversion to Christianity, Constantine played an influential role in the proclamation of the Edict of Milan in 313, which decreed tolerance for Christianity in the empire. He called the First Council of Nicaea in 325, at which the Nicene Creed was professed by Christians.

CONSTANTINE

<https://www.theguardian.com/notesandqueries/query/0,-2301,00.html>

- Constantine, considered Rome's first "Christian" emperor, was himself a devotee of the sun god.
- The famous vision of the cross as he marched on Rome came to him from the sun.
- The sun appeared on most of his coins and his own statue at Constantinople bore the rayed crown of the sun-god. His coins were inscribed: "Sol Invicto Comiti" (Committed to the invincible sun).

- While claiming to be a "Christian", Constantine maintained the title "Pontifex Maximus" the high priest of paganism.

Church & State: Sunday Law - Past

What did Constantine's law require?

"Let all the judges and town people, and the occupation of all trades rest on the venerable day of the sun; but let those who are situated in the country, freely and at full liberty, attend to the business of agriculture; because it often happens that no other day is so fit for sowing corn and planting vines; lest the critical moment being let slip, men should lose the commodities granted by Heaven."-Edict of March 7, AD. 321, Corpus Juris Civilis Cod., lib. 3, tit. 12, 3.

NOTE - This edict, issued by Constantine, under whom the Christian church and the Roman state were first united, in a manner supplied the lack of a divine command for Sunday observance, and may be considered the original Sunday law, and the model after which all Sunday laws since then

Have the Noahide Laws been recognized by any governments?

102nd U.S. Congress (1991-1992), House Joint Resolution H.J.RES.104.ENR designating March 26, 1991, as Education Day, U.S.A.:

"Congress recognizes the historical tradition of ethical values and principles which are the basis of civilized society and upon which our great Nation was founded ... these ethical values and principles that have been the bedrock of society from the dawn of civilization, when they were known as the Seven Noahide Laws."

The universality of these principles and global import was recognized in 1982 by President Ronald Reagan when he spoke of "the eternal validity of the Seven Noahide Laws [as] a moral code for all of us regardless of religious faith" (Proclamation on the National Day of Reflection, April 4, 1982).

Seven years later, in 1989, President George H.W. Bush not only proclaimed that these "Biblical values are the foundation for civilized society," but he also recognized that "A society that fails to recognize or adhere to them cannot endure."

He understood how these "principles of moral and ethical conduct that have formed the basis for all civilizations comes to us, in part, from the centuries old Seven Noahide Laws." And, in doing so, he noted their origins: "The Noahide Laws are actually seven commandments given to man by G-d, as recorded in the Old Testament. ..." (Proclamation 5956-Education Day, USA 1989 and 1990, 102 Stat. 3016, April 14, 1989)

Both the Senate and the House of Representatives of the United States Congress in 1991, on a [unanimous] bipartisan basis, further recognized how this "historical tradition of ethical values and principles...upon which our great Nation was founded ... have been the bedrock of society from the dawn of civilization, when they were known as the Seven Noahide Laws." The American Congress understood how "the most recent weakening of these principles ... has resulted in crises that beleaguer and threaten the fabric of civilized society." Thus, they warned us that "without these ethical values and principles the edifice of civilization stands in serious peril of returning to chaos." (Public Law 102-14, 102d Congress, 1st session, H.J. Res. 104)

Other world leaders have joined the call for further observance and knowledge of these laws. For example, Herman Van Rompuy, President of the European Union wrote (in July, 2014) that he seeks greater "dissemination of the universal values known as the Noahide Laws," and Major General Michael Jeffery, Governor General of Australia, lamenting family breakdowns and drug and alcohol abuse in modern society in a 2008 letter, wrote

<https://www.congress.gov/bill/102nd-congress/house-joint-resolution/104/text>

The Seven Noahide Laws are: What Is Public Law 102-14?

- 1) Do Not Worship Idols
- 2) Do Not Blaspheme
- 3) Establish Courts of Justice
- 4) Not To Kill
- 5) Not To Commit Adultery
- 6) Not To Rob
- 7) Not To Eat Flesh Cut From Living Animals

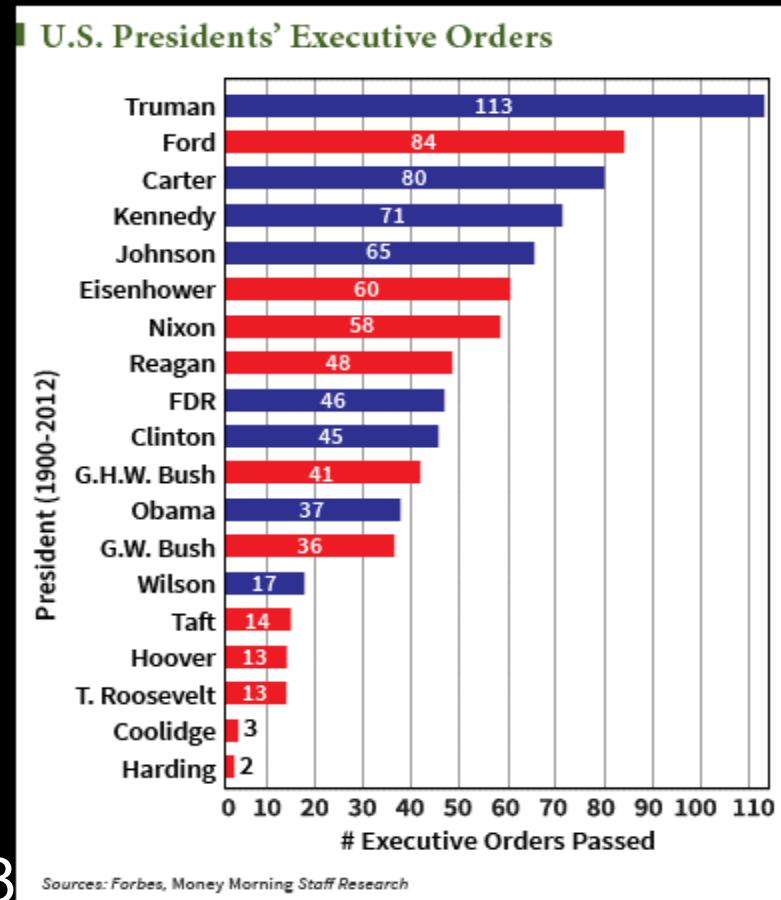

Public Law 102-14 was signed into law by George H. W. Bush and is cataloged at the Library of Congress

But whether people see what's happening in Ukraine, and Russia's aggression towards its neighbors in the manner in which it's financing and arming separatists; to what's happened in Syria — the devastation that Assad has wrought on his own people; to the failure in Iraq for Sunni and Shia and Kurd to compromise — although we're trying to see if we can put together a government that actually can function; to ongoing terrorist threats; to what's happening in Israel and Gaza — part of peoples' concern is just the sense that around the world the old order isn't holding and we're not quite yet to where we need to be in terms of a new order that's based on a different set of principles, that's based on a sense of common humanity, that's based on economies that work for all people. - The Washington Post, July 23, 2014

Writings by EGW in 1901

On one occasion, when in New York City, I was in the night season called upon to behold buildings rising story after story toward heaven. These buildings were warranted to be fireproof, and they were erected to glorify the owners and builders. Higher and still higher these buildings rose, and in them the most costly material was used. . . .

The scene that next passed before me was an alarm of fire. Men looked at the lofty and supposedly fire-proof buildings and said: "They are perfectly safe." But these buildings were consumed as if made of pitch. The fire engines could do nothing to stay the destruction. The firemen were unable to operate the engines.—Testimonies for the Church, vol. 9, pp. 12, 13.

FINANCE / The World Bank and its affiliates are forging a new strategy for e private investment in poor countries. Will it work?

New world order for finance

EMEMBER the days when the World Bank ruled the roost in the developing world? Well, here's a statistic to ponder. The Bank has just announced that its total lending to countries in the year ending March was $21.4 billion. That is a lot of money (a few billion more than the personal wealth of Microsoft's Bill Gates, say). But in at changing direction on such matters, not least because it has three limbs that fail to co-operate.

The first is the Bank itself, which lends only when repayments are guaranteed by governments. Around two-thirds of its lending is at near-commercial rates; the rest goes to the poorest countries and is likely to various limbs from tripping over one another. But Mr Frank reckons that it will require deeper changes as well.

The first of these is to ensure that poor countries are a welcoming place in which to do business. This, a job for the Bank itself, means prodding governments into reforming their use of guarantees in place of loans, especially for large infrastructure projects. The Bank already offers two main types of guarantee. One fills the gap between the loan maturities with which private lenders are comfortable and the longer ones needed for many projects.

'Economic integration is first step towards political integration'

Mrs Benita Ferrero-Waldner is Austria's Minister of State for Foreign Affairs and a member of the conservative People's Party. She is a lawyer by training but has served as a diplomat in various capacities including a stint with the United Nations. She has twice visited India during her present term. In an interview to Ajit Kumar Jha recently in Vienna, she talked about the new responsibility that Austria will bear as President of the European Union, the economic, political and strategic outlook for the EU and its attitude to India.

Q & A \ Benita Ferrero-Waldner

Q: Given that Austria is going to become the President of the European Union, will this affect our foreign policy of neutrality in any way?

So is there a consensus among the various political parties in Austria to end the policy of neutrality?

Well, for the time being Austria is still a neutral country. But at this currency along with the Dollar and the Yen.

If economics determines security as you pointed out, will not the future competition between the Euro and the Dollar undermine the notion of a collective security alliance under NATO?

We the Europeans, and especially Austrians, would very much like to see the Western European Union (WEU), a collective European security alliance become a reality. Until then NATO provides the required security for Europe.

the same time as schooling. This is the reason we have relatively the best craftsmen and at the same time less of a problem of unemployment compared to others.

Do you think a neo-liberal, individualistic ethos as practised in the United States could be a good model for solving the problems of Europe?

I don't think so. Europe will continue to stick to higher social standards and greater ecological standards. Yet at the same time I am in favour of greater liberalisation, less bureaucracy, more part-time

World moving to international govt, says Galbraith

NEW DELHI, Nov. 11. The following are excerpts from an interview given by Prof. J. K. Galbraith, well-known economist and former U.S. Ambassador to India, to our Special Correspondent in Delhi, Harish Krishnan. Let us start with a remark you made in your lecture at the India Foundation. Towards the end, you observed: "We now accept that it is not within the sovereign right of one country to attack another. No longer believe that the United States, or any country, can invade over the death and destruction of the masses of its own people." We ourselves in this country have been forced to examine this question. In the media, the issue of which the citizen is going to owe allegiance to the State. The question, then, arises: whether the State has or should have absolute power? Galbraith said that "there are no beings but human beings and we must have concern for them wherever they are. And, whenever we encounter a tragedy of the proportion, say, for example, in Rwanda, or Zaire, and, of course, in Haiti, there is an international responsibility. I do not want this to be assumed by any one particular country; certainly, it does not want to be assumed by the United States. But I do recognise that there must be a recognised procedure for international action."

In the former South Africa, the problem now seems to be that any group that has a slight grievance itself and there are enough people across the borders outside South Africa willing to speak and advocate their cause. And there seems to be no dearth of resources, financial resources, means of coercion, means of violence, for instance, to be used. It is a very serious kind of a civil order, that there has to be a recognised authority in the society.

JKG: Give me an example.

HK: Let us say Kashmir, or Punjab, which is presumed to have been solved or say in the north-western province of Pakistan, growing to believe that they are still there, though those who were in control of the State power do not care for them.

India is not Somalia

JKG: I will draw a clear distinction between local political conflict, local and mass tragedy and in my lecture I was talking about mass tragedy. There are conflicts in South Asia, there new mantra of the Market, that private enterprise, private capital, private businesses are the people who are going to solve all the problems, that you had been in this country in the early sixties when nation-building was a grand preoccupation...

JKG: I did not say that: I do not mean it for a moment. I did say that in the field of economic development, we have passed the phase when we need to worry about the power of the big corporation, the big multinational corporations; that, on the other hand, Governments, states are still able to protect themselves from the mult-national corporation.

HK: In the late fifties, and the early sixties you and others talked of the military-industrial com-social responsibilities of the nation-state. There will be a new conflict, I think it will be a peaceful one. And it will be a conflict in which the market will ultimately be the determining factor. The internationalisation of life, particularly economic life, or cultural life, or tourism, is one of great sweeps of history. And we must recognise that.

HK: Will this globalisation, this internationalisation, be necessarily at the expense of the poor and the vast masses of the world? For example, in the case of widespread suspicion in this country that the economic reforms are targeted at and geared for a very small minority.

JKG: There is a problem here. There is a conflict between the welfare functions of the nation-indications that this is happening. The EEC is such a coordinating body, and to some extent it is like GATT. So we are at the coordinating stage now. Perhaps 50 years from now we will move from a nation-state to an agency governing body. I will be surprised and by the time, and no body will be able to blame me for that.

Nation-state will wither away

HK: Do you see 30 or 40 years from now the nation-state withering away, and numerous city-states doting the globe?

JKG: That is an interesting question. There will be a supervisory authority by the nation-state to larger international agreements, and beyond that to some form of international government, or a central bank, or a standard currency system, an international cultural system, and an international financial system, without having some kind of ruling governmental organisation.

HK: Does it mean that nationalism as a creative force is a spent force? After all, the capacity to mobilise the vast and diverse masses of people in the name of nationalities has been one of the characteristics of the governing arrangements.

JKG: Nationalism is certainly not a spent force. It is the story of ethnic and national instinct, and it was the nation-state that created the welfare system that saved, modified, and civilised capitalism. It represented the qualities of the capitalist system: so there remains a strongly affirmative role for the state. But, on the other hand, we have this great sweep of history, and we must believe that generally we can make a decision between what is right and what is wrong; there may be different decisions between the welfare, ameliorative actions of the state and the well-being effect of internalisation; but both are benign developments.

HK: And both have to be welcomed?

JKG: Yes, both have to be welcomed. In future, each is going to have its spokesperson, defining, arguing, for its superiority.

HK: In the next 20 or 30 years national elites are going to give up all the prerogatives, privileges, and powers?

JKG: Reluctantly, but unquestionably. A great many things will remain with the nation-state, but in the next 30-40 years a great many functions now performed by the nation-state in this movement internationalisation cannot mainly on the greed people, but so we think of them. They were plenty TA was against the national interest of the free trade.

World Council of Churches

THE World Council of Churches (WCC) was founded by the coming together of diverse Christian movements. On May 13, 1938 at Utrecht, a provisional committee was appointed under the chairmanship of William Temple, then Archbishop of York, to prepare for the formation of WCC. It was formally constituted on August 23, 1948 in Amsterdam, representing 147 churches from 44 countries.

Located in over 100 countries today, WCC member-churches (324) come from nearly every Christian tradition. It collaborates with regional, national and international Christian World Comunions (e.g. Lutheran, Reformed, Methodist) and international ecumenical bodies.

The member churches from India are: Bengal-Orissa-Bihar Baptist Convention, Church of North India, Church of South India, alankara Orthodox Syrian Church, Mar Thoma Syrian Church Malabar, National Council of Churches in India, Samavesam lugu Baptist Churches and United Evangelical Lutheran churches. Traditions outside the WCC are Roman Catholicism, Seventh Day Adventism and the Salvation Army. However, a C-Roman Catholic joint working group meets yearly and the Salvation Army has fraternal relations with WCC as a world ecumenical body.

mong the WCC's constitutional functions is the breaking down barriers between people and the promotion of one human family in justice and peace." The WCC is an accredited non-governmental organisation with United Nations. Commission of Churches on International Affairs was established in 1946 by the WCC. It has played an important role in drafting Article on religious freedom in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights adopted in December 1948.

Amid Worries Of Polarisation, Benedict XVI To Follow His Predecessor Pope vows to bridge ancient schisms

Vatican City: Pope Benedict XVI pledged on Wednesday to work to unify all Christians and reach out to other religions as he outlined his goals and made clear he would follow in the footsteps of his predecessor, John Paul II.

Benedict, the former Cardinal Joseph Ratzinger, listed top priorities of his papacy in a message read in Latin to cardinals gathered in the Sistine Chapel for the first Mass celebrated by the 265th leader of the Roman Catholic Church.

He said his "primary task" would be to work to reunify all Christians and that sentiment alone was not enough. "Concrete acts that enter souls and move consciences are needed," he said.

The new Pope said he wanted to continue "an open and sincere dialogue" with other religions and would do everything in his power to improve the ecumenical cause.

The message was clearly designed to show that Benedict would follow many groundbreaking paths opened by John Paul, who had made reaching out to other religions and trying

Warned for the - Future

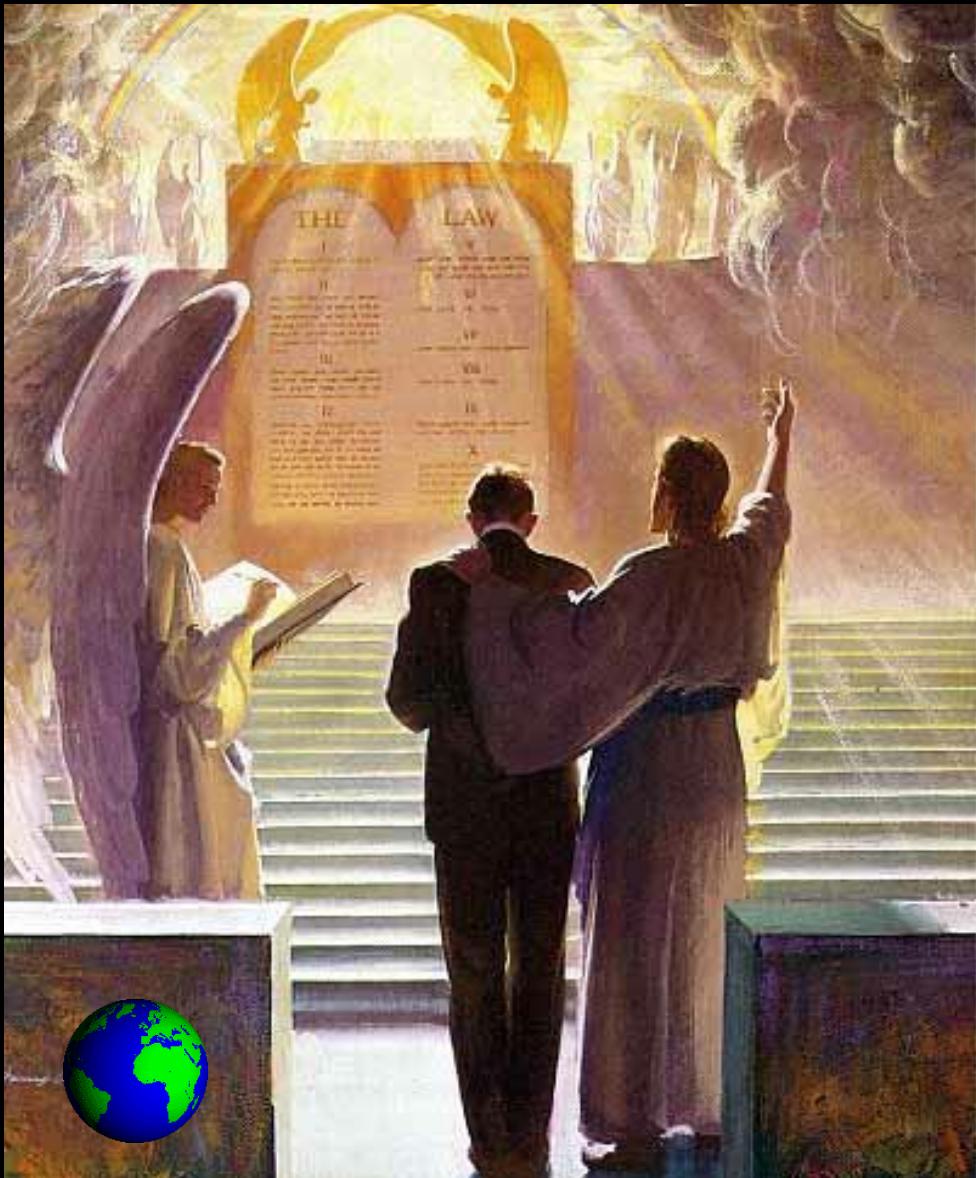

Last Day Events, p. 256

The remnant church will be brought into great trial and distress. Those who keep the commandments of God and the faith of Jesus will feel the ire of the dragon and his hosts. Satan numbers the world as his subjects. He has gained control of the apostate churches; but here is a little company that are resisting his supremacy. If he could blot them from the earth, his triumph would be complete. As he influenced the heathen nations to destroy Israel, so in the near future he will stir up the wicked powers of earth to destroy the people of God.

Revelation 12:17

Judgement Based on Law

Let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter: Fear God, and keep his commandments: for this is the whole duty of man. For God shall bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good, or whether it be evil.

- Ecclesiastes 12:13-14

For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ; that every one may receive the things done in his body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad.

- 2 Corinthians 5:10
